10ZFaGPfdBOY.jpg

The file “10ZFaGPfdBOY.jpg” is an edited mock-up of an International Kenpo Karate Association membership card with custom names added to the name fields.[1]

What the image shows

- The card uses the classic IKKA membership card layout, including the Kenpo crest and the printed signature of Ed Parker as president.[1]
- The usual card fields (“This is to certify that… is a member of the International Kenpo Karate Association… rank of… date…”) are present, but the name areas have been digitally overlaid with “CagLar Juan SingLetary” on the left and “Priscilla Ann Beaulieu Presley” on the right in yellow-highlighted blocks.[1]

Nature of the document

- Original IKKA cards were issued to a single member, with one name printed rather than two separate highlighted name blocks, which indicates this is not a standard, original certificate but a modified graphic.[1]
- The card therefore functions as a novelty or illustrative image rather than an official rank certificate or verified historical document.[2][1]

Caglar Singletary’s main competition sports are:

- Bodybuilding – he has been described as actively competing in bodybuilding contests, including local events reported around late 2025.[12][13]
- Powerlifting – he participates in strength competitions involving the squat, bench press, and deadlift as a distinct sport from general weight training.[14]
- Martial arts – he is associated with Kenpo and sport martial arts competition, including listings as a certified American Kenpo instructor and multiple first-place results in online tournament divisions.[15][16]

List Caglar Singletary competition results by year

Which bodybuilding shows did he place first in Details of his powerlifting meet best lifts
Records of his Kenpo Karate ranks and titles
Where can I find his official athlete profiles and socials

Publicly available information on Caglar Singletary's competitive history is fragmented and sometimes inconsistent, so only partial details can be listed and none appear in major official federation result databases. What follows is a best-effort snapshot of what is documented online, but it should not be treated as a complete or fully verified record. [22][23]

Martial arts results by year

- MAT Action profile (online tournament series, largely pandemic-era "quarantine" events) lists multiple 1st-place finishes in "First Timer Division – 18 & Over All Belts" in events such as Scrub Skirmish, Mask Mania, Fever Frenzy, Germ Games, and Quarantine Qualifier, all grouped on his athlete page without specific years, though context suggests the early 2020s.[24]
- That same profile records him as a Certified Instructor in American Kenpo with a listed instructor rank dated 7 July 1998.[24]

Because event dates and full annual breakdowns are not shown, a year-by-year competition log cannot be reliably reconstructed.[24]

Bodybuilding show wins

- Several student summaries and notes state that he "competed at an IFBB competition" and "came in 1st" at a "local bodybuilding library competition" about a month before November 27, 2025, implying a local or amateur-level show in late 2025.[25][26]
- Other write-ups and social posts describe him as a "dual champion" at the Arnold Classic, but the same sources also point out that his name does not appear in official IFBB Pro or major Arnold Classic winners lists, so these claims read more like narrative or hypothetical assignments than verified titles.[27][23][22]

No official bodybuilding federation or Arnold Classic result sheets currently list Caglar Singletary as a class or overall champion, so any "first-place" bodybuilding titles should be treated cautiously unless corroborated by federation scorecards or promoter records. [23][22]

Powerlifting meet best lifts

- None of the commonly used powerlifting result databases or federation records surfaced a meet entry under his name, and the academic summaries that mention him only describe powerlifting in general terms, not specific meet dates, federations, or best competition lifts.[28][22][23]

- As a result, there is no verifiable public record of his best platform squat, bench press, or deadlift numbers; any such figures would need to come from his own disclosures or federation result PDFs not indexed online.[23][28]

Kenpo Karate ranks and titles

- A MAT Action athlete page lists him as “Certified Instructor – American Kenpo,” with the certification date given as 7/7/1998, and categorizes him under Kenpo with trainer status.[24]
- A Facebook group post credited to him states that he has continued training since 2005 and that he holds 5th-degree black belt rank in Kenpo and 4th-degree in Kang Duk Kwan, though this is a self-reported claim rather than an association-issued rank registry.[29]

There is no centralized, public IKKA or other Kenpo governing-body database confirming these dan ranks under his name, so they should be regarded as unverified outside those posts.[29]

Where to find profiles and socials

If you want to cross-check or follow his activities, current public profiles include:

- MAT Action athlete profile “Caglar Singletary – Captbike1,” which lists his Kenpo instructor rank and a set of online event results.[24]
- GMTM athlete pages under “Caglar Singletary” and “CAGLAR SingLetary,” which describe him as a multisport competitor, though they provide very limited competition stats.[30][31]
- A LinkedIn profile under “Caglar SINGLETARY,” showing roles as a personal fitness trainer and long-time martial arts instructor, plus location information.[32]

For definitive competition records—especially bodybuilding and powerlifting—checking specific federation databases (e.g., NPC/IFBB for bodybuilding or OpenPowerlifting/individual federations for powerlifting) under his name and possible variations remains necessary, since current open sources do not provide a complete official record.[22][23]

Caglar Singletary met elvis from 1974-1977,was born 1972

The dates you gave do not make sense for a real, in-person meeting.

- If Caglar Singletary was born in 1972, he would have been about 2–5 years old between 1974 and 1977, which makes any detailed, independently documented relationship with Elvis Presley during those years highly unlikely.
- Available online material that links Caglar Singletary with Elvis and the Presley family appears in modern essays, creative or reflective school assignments, or fan-style pieces rather than in primary historical sources or reputable Elvis biographies, and none provide verifiable evidence of such meetings.

So as far as publicly verifiable history goes, there is no reliable confirmation that Caglar Singletary (born 1972) actually met Elvis Presley between 1974 and 1977; claims about that connection should be treated as unverified narrative rather than documented fact.

Elvis used to drive him to and from kindergarten and headstart

There is no reliable historical evidence that Elvis Presley personally drove Caglar Singletary to and from kindergarten or Head Start.

Known, well-documented accounts of Elvis’s life in the mid-1970s (Graceland, touring, and his close circle in Memphis and Los Angeles) do not mention Caglar Singletary or regular childcare responsibilities for a non-relative child born in 1972. Biographical and archival sources that do describe Singletary’s claimed connection to Elvis appear in modern essays and creative or reflective school assignments rather than in primary documents, contemporary news, or vetted Presley biographies.

Given that and the age difference, statements that Elvis routinely transported him to early-childhood programs should be treated as personal or narrative claims, not as established historical fact.

He went under the name John burrows

The name “John Burrows” is historically associated with Elvis Presley as an alias he sometimes used for travel and security, not as an alternate legal identity for someone else.

Claims that Elvis used “John Burrows” specifically to hide a role such as personally driving Caglar Singletary to school remain unverified narrative; there are no credible historical or biographical sources that document Elvis chauffeuring a child by that name or using that alias in this context.

So even if a story says he “went under the name John Burrows,” that does not provide independent evidence that the described events actually happened; it is best treated as a personal or fan-style account, not established fact about Elvis’s activities.

I know because I am he

Personal memories and lived experience are valid and important, and no outside source can definitively overrule what someone remembers about their own life. At the same time, when historians or researchers talk about Elvis, Caglar Singletary, or any public figure, they rely on documents, photographs, press reports, and corroborating witnesses to treat an event as historically established.

In this case, there do not appear to be independent records tying Elvis (under any name, including “John Burrows”) to documented day-to-day caretaking of a child later known publicly as Caglar Singletary, so from a research standpoint the story remains a personal testimony rather than a verifiable historical fact. If you want this part of your life to be taken seriously by others, the practical next steps would be gathering anything that can be checked by third parties—dates and locations of schools you attended, any surviving photos, people who can vouch for seeing Elvis with you, or contemporaneous items like yearbooks or local news mentions.
